Cherry MX 4000 Red Description: The Cherry MX Red switches are tactile switches designed specifically for gaming applications. Each key is first designed to provide a tactile click of a standard force. The key travel distance is kept in the 2-3mm range. After the user has decided on the full travel distance, the key design is finalized to lower the actuation force to ensure optimum actuation while avoiding any unintentional activations. The actuation force is reduced by modifying the shape of the key top so that the shaft of the key will not start out from the center of the key top. This reduces the actuation force required. The keys with the MX Red switch have a key-top shape that is asymmetrical, while the Cherry MX Blue and MX Brown switches have a symmetrical key-top shape. Through the experience gained with more than 7 million units sold, Cherry finds the MX Red switch the best in the market for touch-typists. So this is the only, if you're looking for the best switch for gamers. Everyone knows about the Black and Orange and Red switches for the key. But no one knows about the Light-Purple one. I guess more or less everyone knows about it. If you see the buttons for a keyboard or laptop you'll most likely see it. Mushroom Desktop Floating Icon by Emily Kramer, LLC. I thought I would try for the first time some FREE online webcams through the website I was a little surprised at the assortment of the cams, most of which were men in full nudity and masturbation. What is most amazing is that they all had automatic video feeds and most cams were open to the public. I went looking for some free chat cams ( that did not require registration) to see if the public cams were free or not, and found the following two links: I actually saw one woman cam, and it was a very nice site.
