Daniel Wilson, 37, of Columbus, pleaded guilty to attempted murder and other charges in the March 26 incident, the Franklin County Prosecutor's Office said in a statement. Wilson struck the stroller with his Ford F-150 truck, injuring the girl in the stroller, and investigators later determined the girl was not his ex-girlfriend, the statement said. Wilson told police he did not intend to harm the baby, the prosecutor's office said. "This defendant's reckless driving caused a baby to be permanently disabled and seriously injured," Prosecutor Ron O'Brien said in a statement. "He recklessly endangered the life of an innocent person who did not deserve such treatment." Wilson was sentenced to four years in prison and will have to pay a $1,000 fine, the statement said. In court on Wednesday, Wilson apologized for "what I did to that child," the prosecutor's office said. "It was not my intention to harm that baby," Wilson said. "I believe I did hit the stroller, I think I did, but I was just trying to knock it out of the way."Image: Honda The Honda Fireblade is a damn fine motorcycle, and it looks even better in this new Fuse video. The new Honda Fireblade is a mid-engined sport bike with lots of personality, and it's great.
